

Je Suis Roi

parliament is not the law, no man, government or religion shall steal the law. hide the law, or censor it or claim it as their own. for the many do not, and never will rule the one, as you do not have the authority to rule against consent or to impose your will on another human sole, by force.

For no amount of numbers can justify tyranny and fear, and when you cross that line, it is for the one to make a stand, for freedom and go no, enough is enough, I shall not kneel to fear, I shall not bow to incompetence, I shall not surrender here. you have no right to make that law, and I will not submit to it, ever for it crossed the line, and I am not, and never will be a slave to you.

and if that means death so be it, I will not surrender this land, and I shall stand in the devils name, alone if need be to protect it. you have been warned, invade my land again, and you will die as I will never surrender to evil again, as you have no honour, and no respect for life, and you do not, and never did understand the law, as if you did, you would never have passed this. its ultra vires and should be struck out now

I am not the law, neither is religion or government, no man is above it, or below it, and no one shall control it. it just is, and goes to consent and the idea of freedom for all. which is why your laws are worthless, and have no reality here.

we are entitled to our belief, our speech, if you like it not, tough! its your problem not mine. as the land is not, and never will be yours!

you have been warned, not once, but thrice, and your numbers are meaningless here, as my conscience is clear, and I know the law, which you have sold out, to fear.

now perhaps someone ought to embrace, pleasure and temptation and get back to the true meaning of life... fun again! as there is no point doing anything else, every act is supposed to improve lives, make them better, and put us in a place, where we enjoy life more, do less – not more. and do it better! as I see no fun here, only fear! and that is unacceptable as we are in the business, of making lives safer, not more miserable as slaves. for I am not a slave, and neither are they, and if you continue to treat us as slaves, you will die. as we will not pay money in fear, and we will not surrender this land, which is ours by right, your government is ultra vires, and you are not welcome here. now fuck off, and let me get back to work!!! as you fuck wits, are distracting me again, hellllo no money coming in, need money... pour la kindom est casse, je besoin plus d'argent... more money here!!!! and your not helping at all... now fuck off, and bother someone else, or come up with away of making money again!!!! as I feel no generosity here

That's a subtle hint –that I need to rewrite this, and everything else I've done –least I fail to look good in the public eye, but due to time constraints and other issues, some definitions for your pleasure

Government – is the coming together of a body of people, who in turn decide how to spend the resources they have donated, in order to improve the lives of the people, who subscribe to that government. as we the people form government, of our own freewill, on the understanding we can break that government, and form new ones at any moment. as well I am not a slave, and any theory or notion, that that government has a right to exist and control the people, is wrong.

as we the people, form that government, and if we choose not to work with any group, or they choose to form their own collective for taxation, then that is their right, as it is merely a mechanism for providing good service, and well some are so crap, they don't deserve to be called a government, and at that point, they tend to be a liability more than anything. and any such government that claims ownership over property and land, should be ignored, and dismissed, as if one thing is certain in life, is this: government will always enslave the people if it is entrusted to arms.

its power exists merely to decide how to take the money we dominate and contribute and spend it for the benefit of the whole. by all means protect the weak, and those who do not consent to an act, but your authority and your power does not, and never will extend to the persecution and subjection of those who do not consent, we the people give the money because we choose to, not because you force us to.

each of us has the right to walk away from government, and form our own, you signed up to that. in the united declaration of rights when you gave them permission to renounce their citizenship, and the right to own the land. as it is not, and never was your land to begin with, and so you have no power here.

we are not slaves, and its time you learnt that, for I am king here

Taxation - The method by which we the people donate money and resources which can't be efficiently used to the group. on the understand that by working together we can achieve so much more, and make our lives better. as its hard to achieve anything on your own. and lets face it, if you let people starve, they turn to crime, and are more likely to form armies, and go into you, and that's bad for moral, and health, unless you like war in which case its good... though I tend to find it detracts from the really important things in life, like sex. and in order to enjoy good sex, you really need to be free of the stresses of life, and that means good government, and public services... as let us not forget, this game is purely for pleasure, as I want to enjoy my freedom, my life and the land, and if government goes bad, and money is not spent to raise the standard of care... well life gets depressing, as I for one, can not enjoy a life, where other people are stressed and going into me, at a moment notice, its just bad government

The judiciary: people who assume too much, and try to argue humpty dumpty . i.e. they assume a political view, and then try and argue a point to make it look balanced, when it is neither balanced, nor fair as words are humpry dumpty and you can argue most things either way... beware

the monarch – was someone who traditionally looked after the justice system, and who was pledged to defend freedom, at all costs. they would walk the line between good and evil, and if there were good, respected for their ability to reason and play fair, which is perhaps how they rose to power to begin with. as people would die the idea of freedom, honour and respect, and most likely would come to power, as the people rally to defend against evil, and other man of evil who would seek to dominate all...

Ideally someone of such standing, who would know how to use words to such an extent, that those who could not settle disputes, and who would be bogged down in petty prejudices would in order to resolve their decisions amicably, would go to the king (or someone nominated thereof) to settle it, as they could be deemed impartial and fair, and well would see past the petty prejudices which held lesser mortals back, and would see the heart of the issue, and resolve there.

The man with the plan, who the people would come to of their own free will, as they rally to the cause, someone who could judge a dispute and who could operate with the required skill and finesse to what the minimum required in helping people out/restoring the balance/explaining it before the position was corrupted through misuse, and yet those times are gone. and well power corrupts as the goal is lost.

As its easy to forget why you came to power to begin with, as your lowered to the petty greed and infighting of the masses who ensure. as you compromise with evil, a majority which thrives on fear, as you forget to stand as one against many, and die for freedom... as that is why the men follow you to begin with, or did all those years ago... [cue the alien sex fiend song I walk the line please, as this needs a rewrite again...]

as when the monarch acted irresponsible, and above the law the people rallied and other threw the monarchy, because it no longer lived up to its job function, which was to rule impartially, and in the interests of the people involved. as the people argued that the monarch was not the law, and restored their own government in its place.

unfortunately the people forgot their place, and they forgot the law, and what it stood for, and soon democracy no longer came about the people, but came about slavery of all, in short they did what corrupt monarchs did, they put themselves above the law on the notion that the many ruled the one, on the idea that 7 people could choose to rape a women, purely on the notion the majority had that right, and that is government in action today. the women is the country, the land and the people while the 7 people claiming majority is perhaps one man voted in, with 6 people who go, it's the law, because we are 7, and out majority vote, the one man has spoke, and it says its ok to rape that women, because we wrote that law, and we the people have the right to take your freedom away, only its not all right, as :

“parliament is not the law, it has no right to make the law, it has no right to hide the law, to steal it, to rewrite it, and or to replace it, for it has existed long since they came to power, and will exists long after the notion and the concept that we the people are equal and no government, body and or religion will ever have the right to dictate to us, as slaves..

and while they may seek to clarify the law with statue, in order to explain, in an attempt to gain security for those who have been persecuted, victimised before, from those in power who would abuse it before, it has not and never has had the right to extend it on those who do not agree with it, for government only exists as the body of people who contribute to that idea, and it doesn't extend to the lands of those who do not agree to it, as government does not own the land, the people do. and the people are not slaves and may submit to any government of their choice, no matter what its size.

if it is a nation of one, a nation of many, no government shall claim the right to impose its will on any other, and no government shall bind a person against their will, for their agreements go to consent, and the notion of justice for all.

.and as such their statutes shall bind no one unless they give their mark. For no man shall be bound without their mark. The law is universal, and unwritten, and no man is above it, and I don't care how many people you claim voted you in either it doesn't change the fact, your not the law, and never will be again.

as you have no right to dictate to me, what I shall, what I sharn't do, as I do not consent to the tyranny of your parliament, your lowly lower house, which forgets its place, as no amount of number will give you the right to claim ownership of the peoples land, which belongs to them, not you, and as such you have no claim to it, under any universal law, which stands above you today, uncensored of course... yada, yada ya

No majority shall dictate to the minority, or take the freedom away by force of arm , and I will gladly stand alone as one or as many to defend that right, and that freedom so granted under the law, which stands above you all— and if that means resorting to force of arms, and or standing in the devils name, to restore that freedom, that love and that law, then so be it as I would gladly give my life to defend the few, that minority you would see as slaves..

and as such you are an evil and incompetent house, which has long since lost its respect for life, the land and the people as you strip their rights away, and as such I find you guilty of trying to steal the law, of hijacking it, and of trying to replace it, with your own twisted version which ignores their freedoms, their consent, and their ability to live in peace, and as king, I can no longer allow you to stay in power, least the people suffer again.

For your flags, your parties, your banners are nothing to me - I have my own in fact pour je suis roi...as we correct you subversion of history and restore order again, as with only 16.2%^[2005 election] of the population backing you majority government, I would say your weak, , very weak in fact. and its time for war again as je suis roi, as we the people have had enough, and its time for change, as we the people restore the law to its rightful place, above us, uncensored and pure, free of corruption and your petty backstapping politics, and I shall do it in the devils name, as you are weak, and well je suis roi - and I think you history again [Shame I suck at speeches, else you'd be history today, if they ever woke up to it.. oh for the revolution to restore justice again and freedom in the devils name] reminds me someone elected to a position, can never rule impartially as they will always be for sale, and the law requires someone impartial, someone free from bribes, someone who doesn't care, but whos position and the ability to maintain it (free from revolution) relies solely on the ability to weigh right from wrong, and stand against the masses, and go this is the law, because [insert explanation here] while being able to argue the dispute to a feather... as the saying goes! free of prejudice, free of guilty, because he knows right from wrong, which is why you make me your king....

and why I stand before you now as a man, as an individual, who will stand as one against many, if need be. for numbers no longer matter as far as the law is concerned, as I am beyond mans trouble, as I prescribe to a higher ideal, and the purity it entails, Freedom for all as I rule in for consent in the devils name... the protector of the land, the weak and above all honour, justice and of course peace – which is why the army stands with me (assuming we win of course).

you see no man (nor women) shall bind another to their will without their consent, and I shall stand alone if need be, to defend my person and my land against such tyranny as is yours.

You talk of numbers, you talk of democracy and all I see, is bullies, picking on the weak, as you side with the strong, and fob them off time, and time again, because you think you can, and that no one will care, and yet I do care, and I will speak up for them, and stand with them, because you are wrong, as they are not slaves, they are people too and we shall see an end to your tyranny today

The many, the majority persecuting the weak , while they seek to justify their own selfish end [see expenses scandal here]. you have no care, love or respect for the freedoms they hold dear, no inclination to help, as you fob them off with automated help lines, which go nowhere, as rule on assumption, and well as you ignore the law, and seek to dilute is, turning them and us into slaves.

as you seek to silence the masses, as you panic, and lash out with aggression and fear because you no longer can explain yourselves, fully in public , the whip and the lash, and you resort to scare tactics, to slavery – with your though shalt not do that tone, or this and that, and its wrong! as your politics is restrictive and ignores the truth, that yes we can, and we only work together as part of consent

For no man shall bind another to his will, without his consent, which may be revoked at any given time freely of course, you assume too much when you threaten them with invasion for money, as you have no right to it, and every king of old knew that, the people gave because they wanted to, because they knew how, and any ruler who forgot that, who sought to overstep the law, as you did now, was removed at the peoples hand, as I look to see how you rule now, and well whos backing you have if at all, as its not the people looking at those counts...

. for we follow the law because we want to, not because we have to, as we come together as individuals and voluntarily give our time, to help as it is much better to work together as one, and as many, working together to build rather than to destroy as you have done, time and time again, forgetting your place...

oh to restore the lower house to a place where it follows the law again, so it learns to appreciate the power of consent, as no one has the right to impose their will, on any other, as you seek to make them in your image, as slaves, as subjects rather than watching them grow, as you help to diversify, as you help to learn, to think as individuals free at last... which they are not with you, as you scare them with censorship, as you preach at them with fear, as you seek to brainwash them as leverage for your own selfish ends...

knowledge is power, it belongs in the peoples hands, uncensored of course, as we embrace our sexualities, as we embrace life, love and lust and be all we can be, in the devils name...

[ok I may be overdoing the devil theme, but come on satanic witch!!! and its another reversal we so solely need one life, one vote and the play on souls... (another free will joke, lost in the cross fire of change) – reminds me shouldn't the king disband parliament at will (with it disbanding automatically after 5 years) in an attempt to stop corruption, as if the people are just and good – they would get back in again the second time, and only corrupt people would have to worry, and only a just parliament has nothing to fear, as far as elections go – which of course this parliament, isn't as it is ultra vires, and well isn't it time the people got to vote, for freedom again... - looking at the Kuwaiti dispassion, and going yes I like the sounds of that, as I compare the expense scandals, and other attempts to destroy sovereignty in motion = obviously if the monarch over does it - it results in war oooooooop see Charles I for more, as one argues if the king is only ruling on disputes and no one has any idea on how to invest our money on productive things, why are we going to the expense of maintain parliament anyway? as ell isn't it a waste, and we could do charity instead – too get all those projects done, as the law stands above us uncensored, and unchanged, and well why do we need parliament again? surely not to steal our rights? errrrrr [insert help here, as I'm at a loss to explain this one – parliamentary uses/job descriptions know what the monarch does(or should be doing as far as the laws concerned...

and well if politics changes, i.e. Iraq surely the people need a say, and disbanding it at the monarchs order is the only way to get a house of the people again, least corruption prevail – and well if the people don't care, they will get in anyway though the monarch does get chance to sway them in a public speech before the vote i.e. their views which could well spin it the other way, peut-etra dans order for justice to prevail, mais bon sur ou pas...

and you have forgot that, for we forged this nation in blood to protect that right, and you have done nothing but throw it all away, and now its gone, you have destroyed us. utterly, and I can no longer stand by and watch this go unchecked. for I am better then that, we all are, and if you can not restore their freedom then I shall!

For while I may seek to bind my self to such agreements as I see fit, I will not bind others to them, and neither can you. for I shall sit in judgement and judge them blind. who harmed who, and why, and rule on that, for it is much fairer and more sincere then anything you came up with to date.

Sure you can Rule through strength of numbers, impose your will through force of arms, but that doesn't make it right, and you can try and scare them, dumb them down, and say though shall not do this, or that because its wrong. but who is to say what is wrong, and what is right, not I or you, because we have no right to judge another, only defend the weak from persecution so others may live free. we can not and will not be allowed to preach our morality through the law, as that belongs to a higher power, and one you can not defy

We are freemen, just men, and so long as we refuse to bow to fear, we shall always stand and fight to protect that right to do we will, for we are each own sovereign state, bound by no one but ourselves, and may god have mercy on your souls, as I shall stand here in the devils name and defend that role

You are evil, and while our numbers may be few. our consciousness are clear, and so long as we rule in the name of justice, in the name of freedom, then the people shall rally to our cause, and not yours. one day. the people shall rally to our cause, and fear your whips no more, for I give them my protection, what little its worth, and perhaps we can all stand free, and bow to no one again

Your parliament, and your voices do not speak for me. never have and never will again.

I am a freeman, and will make my own choice. as your sir are a baboon, a bully, and a prick, an incompetent moron, who has no concept of justice or what freedom really means. which is a state of mind up here.

You have forgot your place, as you break your word, and render your agreements are useless, your not looking to help, your looking to persecute, and your profit at their expense.

you are the lower house, and are very low indeed from I can see, for your voice and your purpose is not to legislate the law, but to decide how and where our money goes.

For if the people contribute to the running of the kingdom, they should expect something in return, a better life, as look to spend our resources on works which will benefit the whole.

If you can not uphold that vow, and decide amicably on the best way, the fairest way of investing those funds then perhaps you should consider doing something else instead. like disbanding and letting those more suited to the task take over...

As no government of mine, shall legislate the law.

you do not have that authority, you do not have that power, for your function and your purpose is simply to agree the mechanisms of how our money is spent, in order to improve our lives, and not hamper them.

Therefore no man shall be bound by your law, ever they give money to help you in your projects, because they recognise their value, and you work because you want to, as would I if I were in your place.

Which I am not, for I am king, and must rule with an open hand, until such time you learn to appreciate what it is what, and what we do around here, which you will never ever do, if you continue to persecute, preach and limit their freedoms as though you have that right, when you do not, and its pissing me off now. do you know how many complaints we've had this year? and what you've done about it? nothing because you no longer care! and that's a problem around here, as if you not longer care, you shouldn't be running things, plain and simple, and I want to hear what your going to do about it!

Government resides as place to coordinate our resources on shared works, and that is its only jurisdiction from I can see. to pursue projects which will demonstrate a maximum return on our investments, and from what I see you've been sloppy of late . Perhaps we should oversee your budgets, and your finances in the interests of all...

your purpose is not to control the weak, nor to persecute them, nor to enslave them to your ideal. and while you may have sought to bind me in such a way, as to protect your freedom, I never have, and never would be like you!

as I know what is right, and what is just, and live up to it regardless of what you say or do.

your words are humpty dumpty, and your actions have betrayed you, for you are selfish inbred swine. and it seems the pigs have learnt to walk again...

, you shall never bind them, unless they themselves sign up to it in person, and I shall remind you that a contract signed by force is no contract at all, and no man shall be bound by something he doesn't understand, and due consideration is a factor as well, but you know this for you have argued it as well, so I see no need to argue old ground.

at which point, I expect them to honour their word, and provided they knew what they were signing, and weren't forced, and are in a position to deliver, that they honour their deal, or put the matter right accordingly.

to restore the balance, as the balance is everything, which is where I come in, and I pledge my life to that goal. to stand as one against many, as I ignore the fear and rule accordingly, as unlike you it seems I can explain my actions to the crowd, and I see no reason to bow to them, as you crawl like the worm on the hook, tell them what they want to hear, and it will get you nowhere fast. they don't want that, they want an honest approach, a just approach, a rulers approach, one who will see the flaw, and fix it, unlike you, who seem more content at bickering and ignoring the ordeal, while you pender to those in charge, and hope that it gets you on your way, as I have no issue with privacy, and so long as they can withstand a few typos, and off the cuff remarks, they are welcome to join me in my hall, and spectator in the process.

who know perhaps you will learn, something one day, well perhaps not you, but your friend might! though if you really want to hear me in private them I suppose I shall humour you this once, now come, drink and be merry and tell me your ills.

just don't get cocky, for I have pledged my sword and my honour to uphold that freedom, for I reserve the right to bare arms and to defend my land, to the death if need be. as that is my right, and so long as I fight and die for freedom, it will be worth its weight in gold they know where I am, if they need me. I am not going anywhere. this is my land, and I shall defend it to the last! and we shall answer the call of any oppressed, so long as they fight for freedom, and swear to uphold that ideal.

for unlike you, I will uphold a higher ideal, justice in all its forms, and any monarch or individual which upholds and honours that ideal, will have the support of the people that follow. which is what ensures we rule in your place! at their consent of course. for the people come to my courts, and ask me to judge not the other way around, as they are not bound by it, unless they give their mark.

and I shall never seek to bind them to anything, unless they agree

No man shall tell another what to do, do as you will shall be the whole of the law, and remember this. I am here to protect the weak, and those who can not defend themselves properly. and I reserve the right to use force, to stop any bully from picking on the weak in order to uphold the law. if I see fit, as that is my power, and my conscience is clear. as I have judged the facts accordingly...

and I respect any man, who would stand against me, and fight it out, for that is his right, and to the victor the spoils do go, but I only fight to uphold freedom, and to defend the weak, and that is why I shall never cross that line, as we have a right to defend ourselves.

and any individual has the right to petition us for aid.

I will allow no one to bully, no majority to pick on them. no man shall impose his will on another with his consent. you have a right and a duty to help one another, to live side by side, and to live in peace.

now if I were to rule, and I would only do so only at their consent, I would settle disputes in the balance of fairness, and would not bow to "peer" pressure from those who would seek to subvert justice by other means. as your threats do not scare me, your jibes, or your armies, as what is right, is right and its as simple as that, for I am king, and you are not.

for I need not follow the laws of men, to uphold the law. I need the higher ideal, the higher power that no man shall impose his will on another without consent. which is where the trouble crept in, when you tried to twist it the other way around, a parliament who would make the law, who would ever have thought it, what a vile and horrendous concept, as every single one which has tried to, has stripped our freedoms away, and continues to do so, the world over. they are not just, they are not fair, as only the weak, the individual who stands alone, shall ever be fair!

as I am but one man, and no man shall ever be scared of me, how could they, for those men fight not for me, but the freedom I protect. that is why you have nothing to fear, and nothing to worry about, while I am in charge, and if I betray that freedom I am sure they will turn on me. as you have to make your own choices in this world, and I have made mine.

you have a right to the land, and you have a right to live in peace, any man may take up arms and defend that freedom only so long, as he does not seek to impose his will on another. which is wrong of course, and this is my land. so leave me now.

if you wrong a man, then he is entitled to compensation, to put that wrong right. and if you want to fight it out on your own, then so be it, please try not to kill anyone who's watching! as it costs a fortune when that happens... and yes they can spectate if they consent to the risk, just please make sure I get my cut, and that no one gets hurt!

if you are unable to put that wrong right, and continue to take advantage of him, and persecute them under the notion, that you are hard, that you are powerful and that you are untrouble think again, as I am the priest of lies, and my judges will sniff out the truth, and hang you for it!

metaphorically speaking, as I swore only to do the minimum required to prevent the harm happening again, which is the problem with being just, as you seek vengeance not at all, and we shall seek in the first instance to do the minimum required to stop it happening again, though from then on, we get more severe until they learn, not to do it again, and I assure you that everyone sooner or later learns it is in their best interests to co-operate with one and all.

of course I'm sure its not necessary here, as you have learnt your lesson haven't you? and you will threaten no one again.

Me and my courts reserve the right to address the balance, with force of arms if need be. for I have pledged to uphold that freedom no matter what, as I am sick of bullies trying to pick on the weak and I am willing to die to uphold that peace, that freedom, that liberty and I care not for your numbers as I shall never bow in fear and kneel to your tyranny again. and my land shall go to the successor I choose, one who is worthy and I reserve the right to ignore biological lines, as I have fought to defend this land, and no one shall take it away, on pain of death and I will give it to one (or more) who is worthy, and who is willing to uphold the law against the likes of you.

for I know what is right, and what is just and I will subscribe to that power till the end of days, in the devils name if need be. as I raise my banner and go justice for all.

and I know that so long as uphold that ideal, and share my knowledge with the people. that the people will rally to my cause, for actions speak louder than words, and justice is the only thing which matters, and that is something you have failed to deliver, again!

it is a pity that the majority has always sought to persecute the weak, to conquer them, and to justify its aggression under the auspice that the many actually has rights over the few, and it continues to amaze me, how many people fall for it. you have no power over anyone, unless they choose to give it to you, and the illusion is broke.

for I am justice, and you are not! and I have sworn to protect them! and I will, for I have given my word on it, and you shall not interfere here, though I will not do anything that would break the law, mealy defend it, as that is what is just . do not fire, until fired upon, as the old saying goes, and if they attack my land, they have fired. as the saying goes...

free will is everything, and they have a choice to put their lands to mine, and help. I didn't force them to do anything, they choose to help (actually in my case they haven't - but that is how it used to work! and why the principles work, and the offer is clear) as for as long as people like me live, we shall stand against you, in the name of freedom, and we will kill any who seek to take it away.

I am the devil, I am the antichrist, and I stand before you know, alone with no money, no power and nothing but respect for my fellow man, and yet you scorn me, you seek to move against me and you seek to justify your fear, your control your power, and your authority, in the misguided notion that your numbers give you power over me, over them, and in fact you don't.

and that is what destroys you as you have gone too far this time, and that is why I shall win.

I am a freeman, an individual who knows right from wrong, and I will never impose my will on another without his consent. and you have my word on that, and yet you have done that. more than once, and you have made no effort to make amends, which is what betrays you and you kind!

you have no right to bind me, so you can take your laws, and your justice and shove it up your ass. I am a king, this is my land, and we stand as one against many, and we shall defend it to the death.

that is our right, that is our justice, as all it takes for evil to flourish is for good man to do nothing, and that is wrong. for I will never stand and kneel to evil, even if it kills me. as I am right and you are wrong.

that is why I shall win this war, for the people will realise you have no power over them...

each man shall give his mark to the law, no man shall be bound by its predecessor, and no man shall force another to sign. for a contract signed through duress is no contract at all.

we follow the law because we respect it, not because we have to, and the moment it ceases to be fair, is the moment it shall be ignored.

for I am a king, and prescribe to a higher ideal, one which I am prepared to die for, and that is why you are weak, and I am strong in this little war.

your parliament has exceeded its powers again, you have sought to legislate and limit their freedoms, and have gone as far as thinking that you have the right and the power to uphold that law, and you do not.

for no man shall be held to anything, unless he agrees, and my court will uphold that fact. you broke your word, and I see no signature here, where did this man put his mark? further you have broke into his home, and you removed his liberty, for no reason from what I can see, other then to impose your belief set onto him, while ignoring his requests to be let go.

thereby I find you guilty as charged.

parliament shall be disbanded accordingly! their lands are forfeit and given to him in equity as a reward [so much for conscience clear – equity/conscience oh forget it, as no man shall take another's land, unless his dead of course...] and I shall stand in the devils name, to protect the people, and protect their freedoms as well. as I am good, and they are bad, and so say all of us, and you wonder if anything's changed...

my banner is raised (the pentagram on the black background) and I shall stand with any man to preserve that freedom, that liberty and that right to be left alone, to do as we will. as the majority have no right to persecute the minority, and still it does! why do they never learn? why? what must I do, to show them what is right, what is just? and have I no choice but to kill them? please say it isn't so...

no man shall tell another what to do, or how to live his life, you work together because you want to, in order to build a better life, and while I respect the notion of the vote in as far as improving lives is subjective, I will not accept it, when it comes to the law.

I am the law, in this land. (even if it is my house) and the one two doors over, as they asked for my aid breach my borders again, and I shall kill you all, for I am a freeman, and never say never again, as you can if you like, and that is my right.

your words are meaningless, as I direct your to the notion of humpty dumpty, an the fact that your actions betrayed you on how many occasions?, and to think your going to win this one, your so wrong! dead wrong in fact... (I joke - for you may be right, and I shall await to hear, the evidence as prescribed...)

and so long as a monarch waits, their will come a time. when we rule again, as your democracy is worth st and the people know that now...

each to their own, my banner is raised, join it, and fight for honour, fight for freedom, amd fight for love, as we protect those who wish to live in peace, or stand against me. if that is your will.

my mind is made up, and freedom shall prevail.

I fight against evil in the devils name, as no man shall force a man to kneel in his image. you are free to choose, free to determine the risk, just respect their rights and I shall respect yours.

humpty dumpty means everything I need it to be.

now are you with me? or against me...

le demon dans amour, the antichrist, gareth bowen, and someone who is pissed off with the notion that the majority in the lower things that its ok to legislate and persecute the weak. when it is not, as je suis roi not them and it doesn't mater how many numbers they say they have. for they could have the support of of 99% of the world, it is still wrong to impose your will on another human being, and limit what he can and can't do. as consent is everything and they do not consent to this! and as it stands they have only about 16.2% of the vote, which is no majority at all, and I wonder how the people shall rule with this, and if they shall join my flag, or theirs...

when the time comes for war!

let each man (and women) search his own conscience, my banner is raised for freedom, my word is my bond, now choose your side!

and remember I shall be bound by no statue I haven't signed, and the same goes for them, as they fought on my side... the people, my arse! as they should know better then this, by now! a problem I fear...

and a random note on the legal system: if the sides are competent, then justice is fair, however I suspect that legal council is not what it was, and in the event that one or both sides are inadequate it would result in a one sided affair. in which case it would perhaps be remiss for the judge not to ask questions, to clarify any glaring weaknesses/holes. for if they failed to ask a particular question then an injustice would be upheld, as it is far easier to say nothing, and let it go unchecked, and that is a problem with the system, as people are incompetent/stupid and rarely see anything, unless its pointed out to them, which is another problem, if the judge was bad. so you better listen to the words carefully and learn to pick holes! as I turn to parliament again:

you have no jurisdiction to legislate and limit our freedoms, your laws are ultra vires, and rendered useless in this court room, as you have gone too far and it shows.

furthermore It should be known that when we restored the monarchy, parliament at its times. sought to seek assurances from it, in an effort to preserve those freedoms they once held so dear, shame they forgot their place, and turned on them instead. and one would recall that freedom included the right to bare arms, as they need it for their own defence, against you as it happens, so it would seems strange that we would allow you to regulate it!

and as such you can't limit what they can and can't have outside of international law, which they would have to sign up to as well! as you can't speak for them [unless requested], they speak for themselves which is the point of course

now that power swings the other way, the lions under the throne must roar and preserve our freedom, as the argument is easy, and we are required by law, to preserve those freedoms, strike down their stature, and rule in the devils name, freedom for all.

they forget what they fought for, what we died for, and they seek to take it away, and they do not, and never have had that right, and it is up to us to protect that right, for one and all.

for the monarch shall not, and will not sign up to anything which seeks to persecute the people, she speaks for one and all, and must learn to respect that power for so long as the monarch respects that calling, refuses to take sides and rules to protect he who has been wrong, regardless of how many numbers we face, we shall have justice in this land.

parliament is not justice, they have gone too far, and the monarch has forgotten to rule.

if the monarch can not rule, then others will take her place.

it's worse then the school yard, with the kids ganging up, trying to steal the lunch money from the brains in the corner, only the kid has none, for they stole it all already.

for if I made money, I would gladly donate and give my share to the people, in order to build a better world, but alas I have none, and can barely survive as is.

you can't take it by force, we work together because we want to, not because we have to, and if you so much dare as set foot on my land, and or person I will kill you dead, as that is my right. and I pledge my life and my sword to preserve that freedom, and any man who upholds it for I trust in time, there will be more like us, and we shall prevail, your numbers scare no one, and it is with much regret I didn't stand my ground against those bullies of old, on the playground, when I ran in fear, no I am grown and I own my land, and I will fight it to the last.

and that is my oath, and I further donate my skills and knowledge to anyone who heeds that call, who lives up to that oath, and who needs my protection, what little I have for we shall be outnumbered, outgunned and they will justify their fear. we shall not bow to their weakness, their pressure, or their incompetence, for we are free!

and we do better to preserve that freedom, even if we give our lives to it, as the people must know, that no one need live in fear...

and I do so in the hope, and the spirit that others will one day live in peace and remember what we did, for them.

in the here and now! as people forget so readily the point of things...

which is why, I have acted as I have, to preserve freedom, and to preserve the hope, that no man need live in fear, ever again and I may have forgot to say, that I have no issue with government trying to protect peoples rights, in so much they are not allowed to limit them as well. for example if you want to create "chartered organisations" which will monitor quality, and improve standards then so be it. however you can not, and never were allowed to force people to subscribe to them, as they should stand on their own merit, a badge of honour so to speak, or it fails to work and you are hereby encouraged to promote standards, and other good deeds, and educate the people to improve their lot, in as much that you can't hold them to it. it's called free will and a personal choice, if your incapable of promoting something, and or advertising it. ethically the I suggest you find someone else who can, and remove yourself forthwith, as your too stupid to stand in my place, which is why I veto your act. and I pray that you loose the selfish greed, and do what your paid for again!

in the meantime perhaps you should consider the merits of encouraging people to be themselves, and interacting for once, as you seem to have forgotten it, in your efforts to suppress, scare and frighten the townsfolk, which is why they come to me for redress... as I have sworn to uphold the law, and to protect their back, and if you can't handle it. then so be it.

you know where I am, furthermore you are not above the law, and neither am I.

and I will gladly consider any proposals, contracts your wish to bind me to, only in so long as they promote a better standard of living, and freedom for all. do not suppress that freedom or else....

you will be removed, and I shall find someone else to stand in your place as signed by the antichrist

~le demon dans amour

gareth bowen (if he were king)

as I am not king, and would never dare speak for another, unless they asked me to! in which case I shall and will endeavour to defend them to the best of my ability, and I give you my word on that!
as I am sick of short sighted people, who think anyone has to do anything, they do not, it's a matter of choice, always will be, so kiss my ass, and sk my dick, for I am king here! and await any who seek my help

no man is above the law, and we shall seek to defend it.

they claim the right to control us, to limit us, to enslave us. they preach what we can say what we can do, and what is right and just, like school bullies picking on the weak, as they preach they were elected, that they have the voice of the people, that their numbers matter.

they do not, they can not, and never will claim the right to make the law, to be the law, as no man shall impose his will on another, without consent. no man shall say what another can say or do.

and we shall uphold that right, freedom for all. [now can someone stick that cigarette out, its causing me long cancer, thank you - please. I'm trying to make a speech here. than k you man] and no man shall harm another, without his consent. and I do not consent to this, as they move against us saying we broke their laws. but what laws where those? laws of the many, laws of the few, dictating to one and all, how we can and we do.

and yet they have no right, and we stand here today as proof of that. and no man has the power to interfere with consent, to dictate what is right and just, a that is our choice, our right as freemen.

to decide what is good, what is bad, and if I want to drink, to take drugs, to bare arms, to be tied down, whipped by lesbian lovers in a gay orgey unprotected or not, I have that right. for I consent to the risk, that is my choice, that is my freedom, as is yours.

and it is up to the likes of you and I to defend it. and let us stand for honour, truth and justice for all, as we shall let no man take advantage of another, to censor the truth and to hide the facts as they do.

look at them now, preaching to the perverted, trying to force them to stop. does it work for you?
as no man should be forced to kneel to the whip - though if you desire I do know this rather hot dom chick, who does this rather neat trick where... but anyway!

as this is serious now, there is a difference, between kneeling in pleasure, and kneeling in fear, there is a difference in being scared, and a difference in knowing when you can say, yes stop. I've had enough now, as they move to hide the knowledge and truth of it from the people, the free men of the world, while persecuting them for it, as they claim ...

and this is where it gets hard for me. as they stone women and kids, for consenting to sex. how dare they. as they dictate what you can and can't wear, and its madness. as no man has that right, as it is none of your concern. if I choose to fight naked then so be it.

and perhaps we will tonight ;) (or has the ghost plan been done already?) mark that one down, for later consideration if we ever live through the day, I hear she is distracting as hell, when she gets going... don't look at her tits and forget the gun!!!! and get distracted like that...

as they have led a sheltered existence, highly controlled and we forget that, they know not what love is, and we should remember that. for we are unconditional in our love, and will not be moved through fear.

as we shall only stand against those who seek to take our freedom away, like them perhaps!

see how they claim the right to make the law, see how they move, as they dictate what and can't be done, in parliaments name, cue silly voice time elected are we, 16.2% majority, we are the many preaching to the few, claiming democracy is the law, NO IT ISNT democracy has and never will be the law, as no man has that right! not eye, not you, and not parliament either. as that is the universal law, one we have sworn to uphold, and let not any man defy it. as parliament exists merely as a tool of the people, to spend our money on good works, but of late. they have been using it to promote fear, tyranny and ignorance instead.

their police know no bounds, and their courts know no justice, they think they are above the law, and they show nothing but scorn for the people they have sworn to protect.

THEY HAVE BROKEN THEIR WORD. THEY HAVE DESTROYED THEIR VOES, THEY HAVE CROSSED THE LINE, AND THEY HAVE SOUGHT TO ENSLAVE IS INSTEAD

WE ARE FREE, AND WE SHALL NEVER BE ENSLAVED AGAIN

[Yes dear, I am still on for Thursday night, and I shall do anything you want for fun]

NOW ARE YOU WITH ME?

I give money, because i want to. we are not above the law, and neither should we seek to be it. we can not worship it, and we can not change it, it is a state of being, and exists outside our realm.

it grows beyond nature, its is something untangible, untouchable and simply IS harmony with one and all, and while many have sought to steal it, to preach it, to condition it, it can not be moved and while many may loose sight of it, and or forget its there.

and while they may seek to scare people away from it, they will not hide it for long.

as others much like me and you, will come and remember it, and restore it again...

call it what you will, it matters not god/the devil/the universal nature/harmony balance, it is all and more of these things, for no man shall be free of it, unless you embrace it and live with it to the max.

now face temptation, embrace it control it, and love it for pleasure is everything, we work to live, as we enjoy life to the max, I am the devil, and that is lived backwards we know what is right, and just, and we know what can and can't be done. as we stand here now, willing to help one another, be free. as we know if we work together we can build something great, we can combine our food, our resource and our skills and bring pleasure to all

as we opt into what we want, and what we do not, no man wants any other to suffer, and yet they seem not to care, about what is right, and what is just. as they fall for greed and strip us of our rights, as they seek to obscure the law, to hide it and move it away.

They have sought to control the people for too long, and the pigs have begun to walk, and power has gone to their heads, which is why they claim democracy wins.

please, give me a monarch any day. one who would uphold the law, one who would prescribe justice, and one who would uphold the freedom of us all.

one man to face the hordes, and go no, you shall not, and will not limit their knowledge, and no man shall be punished for what he knows! as we shall share our knowledge, while they censor it. look how they hide from the kids the truth, see how they scare them into submission, how they condition them to be slaves, as they abuse their authority again we have a right to be so much more, and we can achieve anything, as long as we recognise that no man is above the law, and no man shall control us either!

and I stand before you now in this place a freeman, in the knowledge that no matter what happens here, we stand in the face of evil, as good men, pledged to uphold that right, and we shall not kneel in fear, we shall not tremble as they seek to scare us into submission, for we are better than that, we are skilled and our hearts are clear, and we die to protect freedom for one and all

I am the devil, and in the devil we stand, and in the devil we fall, and I can ask no man to die for me, and i can ask no man to stand with me, for I shall fight regardless, and I would gladly give my life alone, to that defend that freedom, but here and now we stand together, as few against many. as we seek to uphold that ideal, that no man shall be a slave, and no man shall be forced to one who claims numbers matter.

that they give them the right to dictate and enslave the few, as they do not, they never had that right, and they never will again. for I stand before you know a freemen, ready to defend that right, which stands higher then all of us.

that each and every one of you swore to protect freedom for all.

come let us preserve that ideal, if not for you, for your mothers, your children and your families, and any and all you come before us, and after us. to this field, for we shall stand as a beacon of hope, a becon of light through the ages, as they hear our cry

FREEDOM FOR ALL, as we stand as one and as many to face the hordes alone

(one hopes no one leaves at this point)

THEN LET US HOLD THE LINE, AND LET US TEaCH THOSE bAStARDS WHAT FREEDOM MEANS..

pour je suis le demon dans amour... and all shall know my name!

(or not)

as I do as I will, regardless which brings me to the notion of kingship and what to do with it afterwards bare in mind, that a rulers place is to rule the law, and judge accordingly, as he strives for balance and humour accordingly. and parliament should know its place, a meeting ground of the people, to decide on where and how their money is allocated for the good of all.

know this, a monarch who is want of anything, is liable to be held hostage by those who covert power, and is liable to pander to their needs, and one should consider this, when one learns how much to spend, on this full time position.

now you may seek to remove him at any time, as is your right, but now this, but know this. anyone elected to the role is liable to play into the hands of their sponsors, and one wonders if this is wise or not, perhaps you should relent and stick with it, after all to find anyone stupid enough, or remotely qualified is hard enough as is. so if you want him to work for you, keep him there as you allow him to rule the law, and let the others spend it for you. as anyone who respects the law will uphold it, while those who seek to take it by force, are perhaps not worthy to rule in the devils name... and who better to choose a successor then the devil himself, as its hard enough to find anyone worthy to serve. so perhaps one should consider that they train and either promote their successor, assuming the people consent of course... as those who fought and died for freedom are not bound by it, you only listen to the monarch because wisdom is often rarely heard, and one perhaps may be wise to hear it, before one resorts to fear, nothing binding, nothing gained posture all you want Obama, I know the law in its entirety, do you? not that I care, of course, as your free to go about your business as you will! and I will defend my people, and any who come to me, as is my word and I could continue with this silly game, but why bother, as once one knows the law, learns it, one is not bound by it, because one knows it works, and will never bow to peer pressure again, which is perhaps why we are always brought of in the end! cue the emperor in his palace, as they cater for his need, isolated and hidden in secret, because they fear his word.... as we move full circle, and power corrupts again as I realise why I wrote this, and went yes. I stand in the devils name, and I shall not, and will not bow to fear again, you have no rights over me, none of you do! and I will uphold that law to the death! which it perhaps will be, knowing how stupid you are ;)

now if you excuse me, I have to work on my site: www.thesextree.co.uk as I try and use my skills to serve, and enhance your lives... free of course, no need to pay, if not for those bills.... which is perhaps why you learnt to pay people, accordingly. don't you think! those who are catered for, rarely cause trouble again, which is perhaps the problem, when society fails to give, but what do I know.

I am the king, nothing more, nothing less, and I shall always fight in the devils name, for you!

and you, and of course you! least we forget how we got here, pour c'est la vie now I wish you good day, and send you on your way, with respect of course, assuming it was given as I wonder if the people, will ever be stupid enough to elect me monarch! I hope not, I would rather do nothing, rather than choose balance accordingly, as I reflect on the matter in my own good time...

though words are humpty dumpty, and well I am only human! remember that, the next time you plead your case as we wil always take a side, and that is the problem, as one shouldn't in fact, and there is no balance, only give and take, which is why anyone wanting this job is insane, because your walking a line.... and it goes, on and on, for infinity, and that is crap as you reflect on hamlet, and if one should take arms against a sea of troubles, or not ~ le demon dans amour again, if only I had stayed silent, but alas, one has no choice, when pushed, and my conscience is clear, is there's? the price of logic perhaps, and walking a road, which can never go back, which is a problem, when you breach that point, and thus it was a new argument takes the case, and one wouders, what happens next...

never assume anything, in the flow of the law, as it twists and turns in the name of justice for all and if you were ever in any doubt, you should have done better with words, not that I need to say any, as it speaks for itself ;)

but only on this occasion, as you're a moron, and I am king!

for now, at least...

and one more thing, an issue with science in schools:

existence is paradox, proof that nothing is impossible, there are no rules and only solutions matter, and yet you spend all your time, teaching them "the laws" of physics, conditioning them, to accept the rules, that you dictate, and herby scare them off investing/questioning anything. it impresses no one, least of all me. as you churn out the next generation of unquestioning morons, who gladly follow anyone who orders them to do anything, because it must be the law, when it isn't...

Einstein was a moron, existence is proof of that, now please, teach them to question, and think for themselves, nothings final ever! and certainly not the law, as it merely acts as a guideline till the next time round...

and one would be wise to remember that, the next time, one prepares your case. no one has to do anything, that's the point, we work together, live together, and co-operate out of mutual need, and not through fear... and I see no reason why we the people should continue to fund that fear, ever!

and that includes the police as well, they have no respect for the law, and can't even follow parliaments law, and prove time and time again they have no respect for religion, and would rather talk down to people, then treat them as equals, and that kind of fails, when they open their mouths, and prove that they have no idea how to handle their words...

as believe it or not, Scotland is in the eu! and has signed the human rights act, and one would be happy if they at least knew what a computer was... as I still await compensation for their wrong and if they continue to ignore the law, then they may find they end up getting killed, which would be unfortunate not, as I will not shed a tear for those who no respect another's property, land and body, do you hear me.... I do not, and will not fund criminal organisations – ever! only those that respect the law! and by law i do no mean parliaments law, but the universal one, the one we all answer to, no matter what happens next!

and with that, I beg your leave, for your reasoning sucks!

~ le demon dans amour, the antichrist apple? I hear knowledge is good for you, and you could do with a bite...

until next time, my friend live and LEARN

I already have, which is why I am king

Established case law and which brings us to the law: (or rather current verdicts/judgements which we have rulled are fair. as I am not the law, and neither is parliament I just rule on what is fair, and just which is why I am king and why we continue to change the law, in the interest of justice for all...

remember do as you will, shall be the whole of the law, it just means you don't have the right to impose your will/hurt and or bully them without their consent, which can be revoked at any time...

and we hope that these examples and clear any confusion up as to how we will stand/rule on an issue...

No one can hold another, or deprive him of his belongings without consent, this is sacred, and stick a sign up/threatening to do it, isn't go to help you either, as their has been no consideration, and no fore thought in law, hell they might not be able to read for all I know.

however that being said if it has been proven that by parking on your land (it is your land right?) that they you have been deprived you of the ability to make services/make money as a result. then you may be entitled to compensation, if you can demonstrate that you've been put out of pocket somehow by their selfishness in this matter. as it is after all your land, and you should be free to enjoy it.... which is why I see no issue with you to asking for a demand, to compensated for any loss of enjoyment caused. though that doesn't mean they have to honour it! or that we will enforce it –

Furthermore this only works, if you have been put to a loss, if you haven't then you really ought to shut up and stop whinging about it, as you get into the spirit of helping one another again, its not all about greed you know. as you should embrace your fellow men, and if you do intend to clamp/toe then you are liable to owe them compensation, for their time wasted/money lost (assuming they have lost any! its proved) and this may be more them, what you would have lost otherwise, in which case. I suggest you share the profits or something! for time saved.

now as to if you toe the vehicle or not, you will have to weigh up the pros and cons of if your going to earn more money, then they are going to loose, of them being deprived of the vehicle when you pay them the compensation for the inconvenience caused. which I'm sure you'd do as a mater of course, as it is a criminal act, trespassing on another land, another belonging and another's person without their consent, and that is the way we shall rule from now on! and it is hoped that you the people learn to put right any damage done, to the best of your ability, as you all learn to build and make this kingdom great again

que sometime post verdict – a smart ass leaves his car on the kings driveway again!

it has been brought to our attention, that someone has left a vehicle/military in nature on our front drive. we have no idea where this has come from. and as no one seeks to claim it, we claim it for his majesty to do with as he sees fit. as it was clearly thown away, why else leave it it.

turns out it did belong to someone one should not be careless with ones belongings, and one should remember where they put them in future, shouldn't one! however lucky for him – we had not destroyed it, and because I am not without passion or sympathy for his pleight. we offered to sell it back to him as a very low rate, with the notice that he should never do it again in future, least we have destroyed it instead, frightful things automobiles clogging up the atmosphere and the like!

now this was a horrible misunderstanding, and we observe that this should not be taken as an excuse to steal property, when you know they are coming back for it! as that would be wrong, and you would be punished for it! as people forget, and it stars again...

[in private – so when do you think they will notice the loophole about the notice? Give it a week, when I leave it outside x's house, with the sign in as I want to see where this bottoms out!]

in the meantime, we suggest anyone sticking notices in their cars saying “back in 5 mins” - stick to it! as if they prove the time limit is up, then your history dude...

and we wonder if this is ever going to end? In the meantime perhaps parliament and the people might want to consider the cost of donating their money to buy a patch of land, and converting it so that x' doesn't have to face hardship again...

As for how you run it/regulate it we really don't care how you run it and ahhhhh and I think I said too much there ooooooooooopsss pretend I didn't say that! as I reiterate the point that no one has the right to dictate to another without consent what they can and can't do.

and why did we get rid of horses again? oh for horses again, or was it the smell? anyway case closed next!

and one wonders if anyone has any more bright ideas? well do ya punk! as the law continues as such...

until next time, my friend come better prepared...

as they learn to late that I am quicker, smarter and clever then them, and well who needs the law, when you can make it up as you go along! (I mean argue it) As those copycats suck, one step behind, which is why we're in charge, and they are just lame duck solicitors chasing ambulances again... as we can explain our actions? can you? as what's fair is fair, and what's not, is not... until next time my friends...

as I am your king

(assuming you agree of course, and if you don't – they I suggest you look at your neighbour britian, and their verdicts and you will see how lucky you are, as they are a corrupt and stupid people, who have no respect for the due process of law, and our monarch witnessed first hand their atrocities, and their abuses of human rights law.

as they brake into peoples homes, without warrant, with no respect for their soveringty, and seek to lock them up for no reason at all, why do they do this? why do they have no respect for humanity, life? and the people in it? who can tell, for they are an evil race. which is why we must fight strong, and defend our lands...

please give generously for the army, as our neighbour is a bully, and have proven time and time again that they are willing to invade a persons lands, and they never compensate for it, look at that door! broken in, and unrepaired from the last war. this is why you must never surrender, and never give hope. as if those bastards come for you! shoot to kill and do not bow to their fear as their can be no greater glory then dieing in the devils name, to protect that freedom, that honour and that right to do as you will, as if we don't then the light goes out, and evil will conquer this world...

"but why do they do it?"

who can say, they are an evil and stupid race, who seek to raise themselves above the law, and desire mastery of all, perhaps to compensate for their inability to build and to live in harmony with the world, who knows, all I know is, that they border us, and they should be considered hostile until proven otherwise, and our monarch was captured first hand, and witnessed them abusing people, and he was deprived of food, and they tried to make him recant...

yes it is my son, which is why we should ever be on the look out, defensive and willing to help, least they come, and force you to kneel in their image! shudder "as they cry you know the law" and try and burn you for it, as that's what they do, they come and take your freedom away! because they want everyone to be enslaved, stupid and gormless just like them!

and who knows, perhaps one day they will learn to embrace life, embrace love, and shall set aside their evil ways, but I wouldn't hold you breath, as they are so stupid its hard to believe, until you witness it first hand, and I would hope you never have to witness that day, but if you do.

I suggest you decapitate the sons of bitches in a single stroke, as if your hoping for intelligence – you would be hard pressed, and you don't want to be taken to their t-4 wards... where your held indefinitely, as your business goes up in smoke!

shocking, it was, shocking! and so uncool in the meantime, we have been wronged, and the kingdom stands ready for war as you never know what those fuck wits will do next pour je suis roi, and we must look to ally ourselves abroad... least everything we build here be destroyed, and if that ever happens, the world will suffer as many if not all have forgotten the law, and seek to hide it, with their own!

which is wrong, as no man or religion or government can hide what is truly there. justice for all! and we shall stand in the devils name, and preserve that law, no matter what the cost, least we perish in fire...

which is what happens when justice isn't fair as it turns people against one another, as they refuse to listen to reason and turn on each other like rabid wolves and destroy each other instead, fighting for greed, as they seek to stamp out all differences, and enslave the weak. and Britain has many agencies devoted to spreading that evil, and the worst and most feared is perhaps social services, which is even worse than their christian church, and as for their police such brutality, such incompetence and such violence to doors!

they can come knocking and seek to steal your freedom away at any moment, and have no reason and no concept of what is just! and that's before you even get to their adjudication procedure! please - call that fair please, I've seen more balance in those broken scales over there!

as they have no care for anyone, which is why we must be prepared to stand in the devils name, and argue their case, so those morons can't subvert the law! oh if only they weren't so evil....

show no mercy, show no fear, they give quarter to none! and you have to be prepared to steam role them into submission, if not to kill them in the blink of an eye, as what is right is right, as you use their words against them in a court of international law....

perhaps one day, if we ever get recognised!

and get justice for all! until such time shoot to kill! and if your captured and taken against your will to a holding cell/t-4 ward for interregation/left to rot. you should bare in mind that you have a duty to yourself, and your land to escape using any and all means necessary, least evil prevail.

do not bow to fear, and if your being held. request to be let go. if they refuse and or fob you off, you may kill them, as they have broken the law and too many men have justified such evil with the likes of "we're following protocol", or "we're following orders, and it was morons such as this, which gassed the jews in their thousands, which is why we should never put up with it.

if your taken prisoner – Escape using any and all means necessary. use anything you can find as a weapon, go for the eyes, or any weak spot, and if you do go for the eyes, and you are being watched. come out with something like "I thought it was blindingly obvious I wanted to be let go..." (perhaps not those words) but something equally sublime, as you want the other prisoners on your side, strength in numbers, and if nothing else your callous disregard for their authority, your refusal to show fear, may buy you the time you need, to escape, as they are a cowardly race, as you return to your lands in peace.

obviously respect those, who respect your freedom, as not everyone is bad, but many are! and if those morons pull you before their courts, remember this. that they are holding people illegal on religious grounds, which puts them in breach of the international conventions ergo they are trying to make it look as though the people are insane, in which case ask yourself this.

Where's the mens rea? how can a crazy person form intent, and that will piss their courts off, as it winds them up when one such as you knows the law...

in the meantime ignore them, and perhaps they will wipe each other out as is their right! as we only defend our land, our selves and those who ask for our aid/can't help themselves/and who of course follow the law, which no man /religion/majority/government shall hide/steal/break or subvert while replacing it with their own! which is the problem with the world today no manners! and if only I were king...

and if you get to your land, and they come again, defend yourself and repeat until they are dead, or you are, sooner or later they will realise their mistake and allow us to live in peace, and if not, at least we died for freedom, which is more than can be said for them!

and if your ever caught, black mailed into signing your guilt refuse and use the words not guilty in all instances, as they love to scare people into signing convictions/plea bargaining in the hope that they fall for it, if your acted according to the law, then no court on earth can convict you, and if they do... well they are wrong, and you are at liberty to do as you must, to escape (or learn a better argument) as you choose if you want to live in fear, or with freedom in mind as your not alone, and your being watched all the time (but that's another storey) and actions have consequences, not just yours, but for the sheep who follow... which is why you should never submit to fear, as if you do, they all loose and if you assume the courts offer mercy think again, as no one should be forced to justify their crime, which is what you do. if you plead anything else... for they are morons, and are fickle to the ebbs and flow of emotion and looking good and one should never, ever justify their crime or worse give credence to their theatre...

and it is a theatre, as the ebbs and flows of politics takes its sway, and it always takes its sway and moves on perception, which is why no man should be foolish enough to let another defend him/argue his case. least it be your last, so learn the law in its entirety and fight it to the best of your ability, as those other morons, would rather kneel to fear, humour it, then fight for anything like honour, justice or anything else, going from what I've seen of "their professionals" and I wouldn't be surprised if they are just paid to keep the illusion of justice going, rather than playing their part beware any man who humours parliaments law and scare people off challenging it... for they are the enemy and have submitted to fear, and they have no interest in freedom, as they are not free, and only someone who knows freedom can defend it.

and many a slave has come and promised freedom, and has sought to take it away, and limit it instead. because they are scared, and well that is imprinted on their followers, as one you expand your dimensions and encompass the knowledge you can never go back once you learn something again, knowledge is power and you have to share, least you loose the lot and you have no need to enslave another (unless they consent, women are funny at times), as who cares what they do, as long as they leave you alone, and respect you for who you are...

apple? I'm hungry again... though one finds one learns little if one doesn't try to build and create something again, which reminds me the more you link the ideas and expand your horizons, the more you change, and the slower they get and its bloody frustrating, as those sheep never learn! and I swear they get worse by the year, and many if not all, have no concept of words, logic or anything else, and if you even mention the other thing, they tend to break into tears, which is perhaps why one should stay silent, but well as I dare to know, and to will and to make my life my own! though I think silence was perhaps preferable in the early days, people only try and tear you down which is all they are good for you, as they suck the life blood out of the kingdom, and should be avoided at all costs, until your ready to make your mark.

build up slowly, and sooner or later, they will have no choice but to come to you, and kneel before their king...

at which point, silence be dammed, unless you're the fool, in which case speak your mind openly, and watch the fireworks blow least one get cocky again so to summarise:

For the monarch is not the law, but the upholder of it, and can only maintains his (or her) position when he is just and fair, while parliament will never be just and fair, and will never be the law, and have no right to hide the law with their own.

they are morons, and no amount of numbers will give any group/religion the right to dictate to anyone else what they can, and can't do, and no man has to listen to it!

and if anyone says otherwise, or tries to bully you - ignore them, and if they persist and or take the law unto their own hands, and touch your person, and or invade your lands, then defend yourself and kill them dead! as they abuse the law, and they abuse life on earth, and is your right as a free men, and may they learn respect for one and all, and some people never learn what is fair, and just.

remember consent is everything, and you should never ever consent to a government, or a court which holds not authority over you, least it go to their head, and they think they rule the world, you are king, and will never be like them! if only you learn the law, and understand it again.

Revolutions to date: from literature

Tom Paine: 2 revolutions – America/france

Carl Marx: 5+ (27?) revolutions le demon dan amour/the antichrist: [TO BE CONFIRMED] but I think we can we can learn to do better! don't you?

they have wronged me, they haven't apologised, and to this day they continue to comit their crimes, and I for one am no longer amused by it, and I give you my word, that I will never humour their incompetence again, and will defend myself and my land to the death! least injustice prevail and if any one wants my aid, they know where I am! and one hope they learn before they die...

as death is what it will bring, if they stay on this path

they aren't your slave, they aren't stupid, but you are, if you think you have the right to dictate what they can and can't do! they land is theirs no leave them alone, and either help or get out of my way, least I rid the world of your kind once and for all

as I reflect on the moral dilemma of who will rid me of these thorns, oh for their cars to explode as one reflect if that is just or not – Yvonne travers/social services/the police and all the rest for crimes against humanity, removed and killed so no other soul is wronged and harmed by their incompetence/total disgrar for life on earth... as their inability to respect, and their inability to learn proceeds them, while justice is ignored ,because there is no justice without money...

and the poor go unheard, silence by those who shout louder, a corrupt parlment, interested in one thing slavery for all, oh for a sword, a knife and the skills to defend onese, akido to take them down, quickly and harmlessly, or perhaps in their case, just would be better served if pain was involved...

as I reflect on the issue of moving from a defensive strike, to one where we take a more purposeful approach and stop it happening again, or else... why did I give my athame to an ex £100 blade, gone swoon such a waste and will I ever see another like it again if only I had kept it, and leant to throw it, a single blade drawn flawless, in a swirl as their head lays on the floor, decapitated again. oh for peace, oh for justice as one sues for the damage, of them leaving blood on my floor, how dare they break in with no warent, how dare they loose their head, how dare they spoil my nice carpet (red does not go with green) and well...

one should be at peace, without this haste... how dare they, as one wounders when my next lesson is, and where can I buy a blade again, I have been lax in learning the art, I need more as one must know how to defend against many, and akido is perfect for that, or perhaps kendo and the other arts...

and then one can use the terrain to your advantage, guns count for little there...

or that appears to be what mohammed/jesus thought and well why should I be any different? considering you're an evil race and would rather choose dominion/slavery over respect/consent and peace. as one should enjoy their life instead as I reflect on the works of sun zui, mushashi (five rings), machaveli and the other greats as well and can one leave it alone, or should one act now!

but does that make me an American as well (???), and I'm not sure I want that on my conscience, as free really should mean free to do as you will, and I have no right to assume that anyone wants or needs my aid, unless they ask for it!

and I have long since learnt, that to ignore the psychic side, is one of folly, and may bite you in the ass more the you realise, as one considers the previous reads, and goes yes! perhaps one should have taken notice sooner, and learnt to move quicker, and one shouldn't have surrendered so fast, but one learns with hindsight never surrender, never pause and defend yourself to the last! as you will get no justice, no quarter, and no compensation from morons like that.

Until then I reserve judgement and wait for now, as I consider my sword(s) again and hope that one is not forced to stop them in the act, as that would be very unfortunate as I can no longer pull my blows, least hesitance kill! or does resorting to violence lower me to to gods level (see other work) – as lets not forget I rule in the devils name, and as such am better than that, as one reflects on the mastery of words, which are wasted on morons, and it seems until they learn to think, that the only language they will appreciate is a well timed blade, or a gun until they learn the point, no one shall fuck us over again! (as demonstrated by the Israelis re munich) and yet how to stop them from doing harm again? as they are bound to screw someone over again judging by past records.... as I look to what one must do, to defend ones land from fear and is a deterrent enough, or does that end in war? least they think they can bully indiscriminately again and that bitch is bad, mark my words, she is bad, and its going unchecked again as bullies rarely work alone, and that's the problem, the majority are biased in fear which brings us to government again, and why the witch works alone

Government doesn't own the land - individuals do, and they have a right to choose who and what they associate with! as I refer you to my theories on opt in government for more –government has had their day, and no man shall be forced to subscribe to it and if government/companies or individuals want to buy land collectively – then your rights are shared based on who contributed to it, yada, yada ya and this is pissing me off now, as I wonder how it will end, and how many will give their lives for freedom before they leave people alone to do as they will

in court –

“on the contra, it is not I who hold this court in contempt but you, as you forget the meaning of the law, [pointing to the crest] and parliament is not the law, shall never be the law, and never will be the law... I herby ask you to remove yourself forth wit, as I wish to speak to someone with a brain! and one who would know the law, which you do not! by any account going from your actions here today”

“... you would sentence le demon dans amour, to prision a general with no army, and nothing but words to defend me.. as you will, I accept you challenge, to unite those men into a fighting force to restore freedom to one and all!”

..perhaps solitary would be in order...

“behold how they cower in fear, as they seek to silence, and bully those who know the law” in prison (yes they were that stupid)

“..parliament is not the law, and shall never be the law, if we but work together we can restore our freedom again...”

and their first mistake was carrying weapons, rather careless don't you feel, though we have to do something about those up there!

who knows martial arts? start training the men, its but a dance, now what can you get?

our timing has to be perfect, least we suffer casualties of war how the hell did you get hold of them! I love you no I don't know how to fire one, I am but a priest of words, and well it seems evil demands I learn to fight as well...

we have taken the cell block, le demon dans amour rules here now yesterday we were put caged lined, now we have a keep a fortress to hold them at bay...

what are your supplies, and how many of the enemy come...

we claim this land for our own, after all we've occupied it, for how long now?

you have no respect for honour, you have no respect for freedom, and you seek to lock these men up with no warrant, no cause, they were but minding their own business, taking drugs enjoying life, and you come here, and say you have the right to take their freedom away, who elected you judge and executioner of what goes on in this world?

I think you need to look again, I find you guilty of crimes against humanity, kill him now!

start playing 300, we are about to have their best come in here, and they need to be inspired to take a stand, I ask no man to stand with me, to fight for me, and you can go at will, for I shall stand regardless to face this terror, this tyranny which seeks mastery of men. they do not have that right and if we do not stand in their way, no one will. for we have no choice but to face their evil down, and hope the world takes notice again.

no one shall live in fear, and no man, government or religion has the right to dictate what another soul may do, and we stand as testimony of that right, no we think they will breach here, and here

if you really want to be king, be king, what would you have us do?

... not bad, but I have a better idea, we go here!

hold the terrain, and I shall meet you in London, if you make it through the day! buy us as much time as you can, good luck now, and send those sons of bitches to hell...

NOW you say it was a mistake to lock him up!

fking twat, how many men does he have? and isn't it a little late to be back tracking now, the media are already having a frenzy, and there are reports of riots in Italy already...

if this keeps up the entire of Europe will be at war before sunset

words are just words, and it was your actions not mine, which set them off, you assumed too much, when you claimed power over them, we mealy redressed the balance, and your cities burn, because of your fear, not mine! as the balance goes full circle again, and monarchy is restored... (or not), as the case may be) either way it should be interesting to see what comes next.

welcome to temptation, apple? guess not! and it was that knowledge they feared, for it broke their illusion, they are not, and never will be in charge again! going from current accounts one assumes they will break into tribes/townships/before gradually pulling back together under one man, who is just and fair, and then it will begin again, as power corrupts and they forget who they really were, and what the law really was! freedom for all as they seek to hide it, and curse those who would bite, and know it for themselves...

and I have had my fill, and these apples suck! one really needs to try an orange instead... a bit of variety, least the storey never change... and one hopes it does, and they learn before their end as I'm getting too old for this shit, and so are you my friend!

in the meantime, one hopes and one does their best, and fights their corner, hoping no one shall be foolish enough to claim authority again... as no man has authority over me, no one. do you hear, pour je suis roi...

(yeah it needs a rewrite, but I don't really care, as why should I change something, when the sentiment is there...)

and I am growing increasingly of the view, that one broken door – unrepaired = one blown up police station, if only to restore the balance again, and teach respect for another mans things as they did so illegally, mockingly, and broke their word about putting it right and as for the arrogance of their police inspectors, well... one has other ways of dealing with that, if only to teach them respect again they are incompetent morons with no respect for the law, and have cost me a fortune in time, money and other things and I would see them dead if it restores justice again! and it seems my nice string ends, and all because of those fkwits failing to abide by the law, listen to it, and or respond to it and arse, I give up I really I do, as one looks at how one deals with bullies, and reaises one has little choice but to go to war, to defend an ideal.. and war it shall be, if those morons fail to take heed again...

my oath

I will stand as one against many, and I will never surrender freedom again cue some more 300 rhetoric, and plans of rebuilding the hot gates...

je suis roi ici encore
