

The Devils Views...

A 100% of Nothing is Still Nothing

The kingdom is broke, we have no money coming in, and you have to cut at least £200 billion from the budget now.

No if's, no but's, the taxation revenue isn't there and you have no choice but to cut public sector spending everywhere. Which means slashing all your budgets by 40% if your lucky, and if your not, your gone.

This has to be done now, and it has to be done quickly, as the other parties are dragging their feet and making it worse. Your 2009/2010 Budget had expenditure before over runs at £671 billion, while income was only £496 billion. that's a short fall of £175 billion for the year, and you've already gone over that in October, and that's before the new tax returns come in, and you realise how bad it is.

Further to which home owners have no income coming in, so we can't pay your stupid "council tax" -our companies are broke, and we're going under daily and your revenues are a joke. Your spending yet more money deciding to pay benefit to those who do nothing instead, your government is an ill-managed, waste machine. You have no concept of the real world and what it takes to bring money in. You have destroyed Britain. your deficit in that budget was projected at £609.1 billion and that's ignoring the £102.7 billion Maastricht deficit as well. Giving us a projected deficit of £1,370 billion by 2013-2014, or if you include Europe £1520 billion as well. While our gross domestic product for 2010 is only £1,218,347,000,000 as far as the international monetary fund is concerned, and its getting worse by the day.

British government expenditure is over 55% of our gross domestic product a year. In 2000 it was only 35% of GDP. meaning we should be spending in region of 428 billion on government if we maintained the same GDP levels, and to make matters worse your GDP forecasts per head fall below 2005 levels, and you income from that 2004/2005 budget was only 455 billion which was another year you overspent in. you can't keep wasting money like that!

And to add further insult to injury you claim that it wasn't predictable, and yet it was. This recession happens every 10 years, and has done since the great depression of 1919 (suspicious that, almost as though it were rigged!) So how they hell you get away with inflating the budget, when you know there is less money coming in is beyond me, as your only employing 21% of the people in the public sector anyway!

We have no money coming in here, our kingdom is broke, with anyone in business being refused benefit while you profit in greed. We have been forced to default on our mortgages which exceed the £5100 rental income we were getting in the first place notwithstanding the discrimination we face for being psychic and a satanic witch was well, meaning we have next to no chance of bringing anything in here and still you spend more, as you haven't even bothered to balance a budget since 2001, instead preferring to abuse the system for their own personal gain

I just wish the queen woke up to who you all were and moved on your position before any more damage is done. You should be disbanded by force – more cuts needed off with your heads, so we can save the people again.

The Devils Views...

The time for drastic measures is called for:

- social services is a waste of space, and is contributing more problems than it solves, axe the lot
- students can be judged on grades, ofstead goes. and you will need less bureaucracy in the schools, its time to get realistic and start making cuts
- business link, and other projects of that ilk, give nothing back, they are a waste of space, they must go.
- Anyone in government or the public sector receiving, over £40,000 in pay, is having a laugh. from now on. they should all be on £40,000 max, we are running a business on £5100 a year, and that's everything including food (obviously we can't pay our mortgages and or council tax, with no money coming in which is the problem here!)
- No one can afford to pay business rates when their starting out, and your council tax aggravates the problem as anyone who can pay is, earning an income which can be taxed at source, with none of the overhead involved in deciding who gets what benefit at all, as none of us can pay.
- All your budgets must be slashed by at least 40%, if they are not removed entirely.
- when the banks stopped our money, they didn't consult us, we had to make do with £10 in 2 and 1ps for a month, and its amazing how far you can get on nothing, when your given the choice. enough of these games, its time to teach the public sector the value of money again! cut their budgets now.
- You could cut that budget in half, with no loss of service at all. Only the oxygen stealers will suffer and they are the ones you want to get rid of now! i.e. all those people who look for excuses not to work, who drag their feet, while getting rich of the tax payer (parliamentarians for one)
- Give the lords their power back, and let them audit parliament, it should be staffed by the richest people in Britain, and they should represent freedom as parliament can't be trusted no more.
- The NHS is a waste of space its 119 billion budget should be slashed to 45 billion, as your T-4 wards and incompetence are killing the people again.
- You have persecuted psychics and witches for far too long, as you try and make people stupid again, and enough is enough, it has to end now.
- We have the ability to streamline government and make the data available online, so we can make our own blood reports. Its called sql!
- Now read rich dad poor dad immediately, and learn the basics of finance as you lot have no clue to the value of money at all.
- If you want to destroy a nation. invest lots of money in it, then when they get greedy, pull it out really, really fast and watch the crash as the sheep follow suit, as you turn on each other in greed, and destroy one another. Armies are for pussies. If you don't have the money in the system (someone pulled out) Everyone's salaries have to go down as there is less to share, its not rocket science but fact. You need money to invest, which in turn make more money, as the others suffer and starve because they failed to get their budget in tact.
- Hitler was the chancellor before he came to power beware that fact...