

The Devils Views...

A parliamentary “majority” which has only been voted in by 16.2% of the population is unacceptable for democracy to work

I hereby propose the following ideas:

- That the executive needs to be separated from the legislature again.
- That the Head of the Executive Body needs to be elected in with at least 50.1% of the national vote, for a term of 4 years.
- That the Queen remain in power as head of state with the power to veto in the interest of the people and that convention is not the law and to remind people that the many don't rule the one and as such no government can vote our fundamental freedoms away.
- That the monarch is the last line of defence for the people and may the military reserve good judgement if things get this far. This is to protect minorities and parliament over reaching itself.
- That the 1911 and 1949 lords reform acts be removed. So we have two legislative houses again.
- That the lords be populated by a number of lords = to parliament.
- That Britain is a business, and the lords needs to be a place where the “Dragons of Britain” come together in order to sort Britain out, working with parliament to cut costs, bring money in and create jobs and/or better yet automate everything to such an extent that we the people don't do anything again.
- That the lords be populated by the richest people in Britain, on the notion that if they fall out of the rich list that they lose their seat and are replaced by the next richest instead. The richest defined by those individuals and heads of corporations who pay the most in taxes to Britain.
- That this would be the British dream you bring money in you get to become a lord.
- That this would restore the lowly lower house to a place of freedom where human rights campaigners, freedom fighters and academics come together with the people in mind... i.e. the conscience, the humanity, the passion, the voice, while the lords provide the practical experience of how to create jobs, bring money in and stop the deficit in order to make Britain profitable again.
- That the media would exist free of interference to say what they want in order to keep people honest and morally on track.
- That parliamentarians can only take their seat, if they receive 50.1% of the constituency vote.
- That money not be a bar to standing which means no deposit to run. So that people vote for individuals not the party.
- That our representatives on the council of Europe and the European council be voted in with at least 50% of the national vote.
- That the president of Europe, should be voted in with at least 50.1% of the vote
- That the attorney general or rather the head of the crown prosecution service of each police constituency be voted in by 50.1% of the vote
- That the judiciary remain separate from parliament, and the lords.

The Devils Views...

- That the executive propose the candidates for the uk supreme court.
- That these short lists be approved by parliament (not the lords) and that they take their seat for life, and that they can be removed by a majority vote of parliament, and/or resignation by themselves.
- That one life = one vote, and all the people of Britain get a say. which means lowering the voting age to 12 and that any person below that age will have their proxy vote carried by their parents (girls mother, boys father or nearest surviving relative) on the notion that they are the future of Britain, and they will inherit this mess, and the mess of anything left behind by those currently in power. On the grounds that if your going to have a democracy you may as well have a democracy and the 6 year old is most likely to spot the flaw in any given plan.
- That all promises i.e. treaties made to the rest of the world for the protection of human rights i.e. the un declaration of human rights, and other international law documents, including the European charter of fundamental rights be recognised in law by the court system even if they aren't written in statute.
- That the judiciary will accept and listen to all decisions and jurisprudence by any other court in the world, even if they are not bound by it.
- That the judiciary must supply reasons to all arguments presented in court [and the case files] - in writing - no matter how big the case in their summing up no matter how big the case whether it be civil or criminal without being asked.
- That magistrates, judges, clerks, government officials, politicians, etc make the people feel at ease without lording it over people as we the people work together because we want to and it's not supposed to be scary.
- That the judiciary will not be allowed to fob people off, on the grounds they think they are stupid, and or don't know the law.
- That all judgements, transcripts, and decisions of all courts be available online for free. (see the oynx project and the sextree for more) and that anyone can file anything online as it's a waste of trees and postage. I'll even help you write you the bloody software, if you need it!!!!
- That a full top down government breakdown exist for all government budgets to the smallest thing even i.e 2p. Even if it's a link to an excel spreadsheet available for all to see as we're supposed to be transparent here.
- That no one be extradited without their consent as we are a team and we do not sell anyone out no matter how annoying and that we will handle all disputes internally.
- that we the people work together because we want to, not because we're scared into it, and that anyone can break away and form their own separate state at any time and we recognise that fact across the world.
- That your numbers, flag and your military don't change anything and for so long that governments maintain the right to bare arms the people can as well.
- That government recognise freewill and consent and that no government shall cross that line as we the people work together because we want to and not by force of arms, and as such shall be allowed to choose our own risks in life while we strive to help improve lives, reduce risk and help people out.

The Devils Views...

- That government and individuals be treated the same under the law no matter what their size, flag or numbers are.
- That anyone working in public office be expected to speak the truth and give information openly without fobbing people off.
- That we no longer wear suits, uniforms or silly wigs in government or the judiciary as casual dress is more open, and less intimidating to the people.
- That... this is starting to get silly now, so we're stopping for a commercial break.
