

The Devils Views...

A parliamentary “majority” which has only been voted in by 16.2% of the population is unacceptable for democracy to work

I hereby propose the following ideas:

- That the executive needs to be separated from the legislature again.
- That the Head of the Executive needs to be elected in with at least 50.1% of the national vote, for a term of 4 years.
- That the 1911 and 1949 lords reform acts, be removed. So we have two legislative houses again.
- That the lords be populated by a number of lords = to parliament.
- That the lords be populated by the richest people in Britain, on the notion that if they fall out of the rich list, they lose their seat and are replaced by the next richest instead: on the grounds:
- That Britain is a business, and the lords needs to be a place where the “dragons of Britain” come together in order to sort Britain out, working with parliament to bring money in again
- That this would restore the lowly lower house, to a place of freedom, where human rights campaigners, freedom fighters and academics come together with the people in mind... i.e. the conscience, the humanity, the passion, the voice, while the lords provide the practical experience of how to bring money in. As theory is one thing, but harsh reality another!
- That the media would exist, free of interference, to say what they want, with the power of the people to boycott the lords products, if they forget their place, i.e. assuming they forget their place/ fall/ turn to greed, and ditto for parliament as well.
- This would be the British dream, you bring money in, you get to become a lord, and it would only be populated by those who pay taxes to Britain, “traitors” who are trying to smuggle money out of the country/avoid helping out - would not be rewarded, and would not be eligible to stand for freedom again. i.e. every would be entrepreneur or business man, who comes up with a new concept, and markets it on the international scene, will be rewarded when they make it that far, and none of that political crap need interfere. Your good, or your not, and the competition is clear.
- That parliament be responsible for the budget construction, and that the lords must sign off on it. after business rips it apart. with the head of the executive getting veto.
- that parliamentarians can only take their seat, if they receive 50%+ of the vote, that the elections have run and that none votes count against them, as I’m sick of a choice between twiddle dee, and twiddle dumb as parties have no place here
- That money not be a bar to standing, that anyone can stick their name down, and that those not making the marker, drop out.
- That if a parliamentarian doesn’t get the 50.01% votes needed, the seat remain open, and a new election take place a month later, where anyone can run, and this is repeated until they get the required number of votes from the population. (one crisis, and I think people will start voting again! especially when legislation starts getting passed!!!)

The Devils Views...

- That our representatives on the council of Europe and the European council, be voted in with at least 50% of the national vote. as we are a part of Europe, and the international world, and that those decisions count, perhaps more than Britain's ever will.
- that the president of Europe, should be voted in with at least 50% of the vote (yes I'm aware there are two Europes, which is why I through the council of Europe in above, as a joke... or is that the other way around, as we like the one with Russia in....)
- that the attorney general be voted in by 50% of the vote, as surely if its in the peoples interest, the people have the say, and it should reflect the views of the candidate, who decides what to push, and what not t...
- That the judiciary remain separate from parliament, and the lords
- That the executive propose the candidates for the UK Supreme Court.
- That these short lists be approved by parliament (not the lords) and that they take their seat for life, and that they can be removed by a majority vote of parliament, and/or resignation by themselves.
- That one life = one vote, and all the people of Britain get a say. which means lowering the voting age to 12 (the age, they are considered adult, when facing a crime) and that any person below that age, will have their proxy vote carried by their parents, on the notion that they are the future of Britain, and they will inherit this mess, and the mess of anything left behind by those currently in power. i.e. their votes are perhaps the more important still!
- That all promises made to the rest of the world for the protection of rights i.e. the declaration of human rights, and other international law documents, including the European charter of fundamental rights, be recognised in law, and be counted by Britain, without having to be explicitly declared in statute, as government should keep its word and be bound by it!
- That the judiciary will accept and listen to all decisions, and jurisprudence by any other court in the world, even if they are not bound by it.
- That the judiciary must supply reasons to all arguments presented in court [and the case files] - in writing - no matter how big the case, especially when they fail to agree.
- That if they fail to follow another court's verdict (if they are not bound by it) that they give the reasons why, and tackle all objections made in that judgement as well!
- That the judiciary will not be allowed to fob people off, on the grounds they think they are stupid, and or don't know the law.
- That the same high standard of reasoning should be expected by anyone who shows. From the for the lowest of the low, to the highest on high because we are all equal under the law, and there is no excuse for the judiciary to be sloppy, this is not acceptable, and is grounds for dismissal! as I've had enough of their crap for now.
- Yes the ECHR inter alia is the next court of appeal from Britain, and yes we are bound by it, unless we offer more protection to the person from attack, on the grounds that the current set of British justices, are just plain sloppy, incompetent and I think haven't been to law school at all! and that all judgements should state, who's for and against the order, and that the decision and or order of the court be clearly identified, as we shouldn't have to spend hours on the net, trying to search previous cases out, to find what the original order was [the current lords are particularly bad at it], i.e. your not supposed to hide the law, and bury it. but make it clear, where you lot stand, so we the people can argue it as I shouldn't have to spend my time trying to reverse 5 sets of negation in a single sentence out, trying to figure out which way the court ruled.

The Devils Views...

- That all judgements, transcripts, and decisions of all courts be available online, and be available for free. (see the oynx project and thesextree for more) and that anyone can file anything online. as it's a waste of trees and postage, the other.[I'll even write you the bloody software, if you need it!!!!]
- That no one be extradited without their consent, as we are a team, and we do not sell anyone out, that we will handle disputes internally, and we reserve the right to compensate those dissatisfied customers, for their mistakes. least the country suffer again.
- that we work together because we want to, not because we're scared into it, and that anyone can break away and form their own state at any time, and we recognise that fact across the world, as the many do not rule the one, and we have the same sovereignty regardless of power.
- That your flag, and your military don't change anything, we have our own, and so long that governments maintain the right to bare arms, the people can as well.
- That no one shall rule against consent, and that we shall be allowed to choose our own risks in life, while we strive to improve lives, reduce risk and help people out.
- That all court staff, trying to fob the public off, under the assumption that they don't know the law, be removed, as it should be open to anyone to file.
- That everyone regardless of "experience" should receive the same standard of care and help. As its painfully obvious, that they are playing politics here [or are just crap] and either way, its unacceptable, as we the people expect more.
- That judges answer be compelled to answer all questions truthfully and honestly, and be under the remit to help, as not all lawyers are created equally, and it is painfully clear that a judicial opinion is different from a legal opinion for all concerned, i.e. we the people want to know, what they think! and as such they should be eager to hear anyone who wants to appeal, so that we get to the bottom of things, quick. [a hasty judge is a foolish judge, and admins a bitch?]
- That the police be prevented from writing down evidence, how they please. That they process all cases free from discrimination, and bias, and do their jobs right! Which includes handing over the evidence they have, and or have acted upon. - and yes do you need evidence to act - when requested to by individuals concerned.
- That they no longer be allowed to illegally break in, without warrant when they feel like it, ever. and if they promise to fix a door, they should fix it immediately. please
- That we the people have the right to defend the land, and anyone who breaks in illegally, will be killed as it mimics Britain, you invade britian, in breach of un law, you will die. and likewise if you break into my house again, you will die in turn, as you have the same right as government here.
- An angry mob, gang does not have the right to dictate to the few or the one, what they can and can't do. if a person, group does not want to do something, leave them alone, or present a better argument, free from pressure.
- That all government agencies, and public authorities, will hand over all evidence explaining why they acted in such a way. free of charge [by email] and that anyone found lying, or stone walling be removed from office immediately. As the system should be open, transparent and helpful to all.

The Devils Views...

- that no one be held without charge, or evidence as it screws up lives. i.e. holding someone illegally for 24 hours is way too long!!!. you either have the evidence, or you do not, now which is it please? as I'm sick of people trying to screw people over. and that means we can move swiftly onto trial now, doesn't it? oh dear, no evidence, no charge, no proof let them go now please, or I will stick you in prison instead. i.e. 1 hour of illegal incarceration = 1 year, in side, hint, hint ...
- and if the evidence is good enough to hold someone, it is good enough to be heard publically, no exceptions to this point. no private hearing, all public!! and yes you do have the right to meet your accusers, cross examine the testimony, and all other witnesses inter alia and I wished people would stop forgetting this point, see inter alia article 6 - europe, and amendment VI - America for more
- that we no longer wear suits in government, as casual dress is open, and less intimidating to the people, and as government is of the people, your personality should shine.
- Government should be in the interest of helping people to the best of their ability, and should not be fobbing them off, with crap. i.e. if you know something you have to say.
- That Britain stop screwing the people of the world, and remain professional and at the forefront of innovation at all times, as were the brains operation, the creative inspiration the world first, we act first, and the rest follow (or something like that, I forget how to sell it and yes, we really have to stop screwing people over. though I think if we are going to interfere in other elections - which we will- under the notion of restoring the beacon of freedom - that we should do it with style, charisma, and class - as we should be the best debaters the world has ever seen, and present argument objectively, that they be awed by our presence, our intellect, and go that's Britain again... as they make their own minds up, notwithstanding the fact we have led them there, by example, proving why it works, and how they are just crap, if they don't follow our lead inter alia bon sur, yada, yada ya)
- no one will be punished, for their inability to live up to their contract obligations.. shit happens, you should have given more support!
- the legal system is not about vengeance, its about righting the wrong, with the onuce on peace
- Mercy, respect, love, honour, honesty and justice are the values we teach as we respect liberty and freedom for all!
- if a person is causing trouble, then by all means we should strive to do the minimum required to prevent issues again, i.e. persona non gratta, your not welcome here, go back to your own land, and stay until you learn some civility again. there is no reason to restrict communication, and communication with the outside world, if they can do no harm.
- we are big enough to accept all ideas, and we do not punish anyone for politics, as we can beat them with reason and debate
- incarceration, is only acceptable for those who are unable to control themselves, around other people and pose a danger to all.
- ideas can and never be a danger as your expected to use your brains, and grow taxation:

The Devils Views...

- That everyone in Britain, be paid the same in benefit, regardless of if they are working or not, that all other income is taxed accordingly, at a higher rate, so no one is left behind, and forgotten in the cross fire. as this is Britain and we're working as a team, and the onuce should be on sharing responsibility (with respect to working time directives) and we should be look to do less, not more, as our skill brings the money in, and we're in it to win. i.e. long hours, and high prices, are detrimental to any notion of freedom, and well there is just too many people, and we should be judged on how little we need to do, to bring money in! as we're good....
- That business people, be expected to grow their business, with the intent of competing on the international scene, that if they are unable to use their profits for investment, to grow. that that money be reallocated elsewhere, to people who can use it effectively, with the idea of putting us on the map, as our benefit will grow the more we bring in, and go down the more we suffer, as we are one nation, one people, looking to change the world.
- That those business people, who are trying to quit before half time, and retire before death. have a way of selling their businesses, without being taxed to death, so they can retire and live in peace (at least until they get bored, and want to go in again)
- we have a right to learn, and to be taught early in life. and it is better for all if we overcome our fear, and share knowledge openly, so others can improve on our ideas, and well come up with something, so I don't have to work anymore, as really, we should be better then this, and making a profit now!!!!
- That money sitting around, not doing anything is wasted, as there is too much suffering in the world, not to be investing in growth, and we should be doing more to improve the standard of living, for all concerned, as the goal should be temptation and pleasure for all.
- That money while being mistaken for the score card of life is not the reason we do anything, really. as we are working to give something back, to improve lives, and . while it may indicate that we're giving something back, that its wanted, because they pay for it. and that we're obviously getting better, they forget, that there is often a long time before that return was seen, and that some people make a loss before it gets to the point it is wanted, and that abandoning projects too early, might be the death of things to come. i.e. if we have a good idea, we need to see it get funding, and or at least give it a chance, to get to the point where it could bring money in, else no one would do anything, in this world.

banking

- That the banks exist to circulate money for investment, ie. those who are contributing and have the idea to accomplish more, should get the cash to improve those lives.
- That if people run into difficulty, we do our best to help them out, that means all debts are frozen, until such time they get back on their feet again, and can contribute again. as those who help, will continue to help.
- that some business ideas, may need more money, more people, and more advertising before they become profitable again.
- That the "dragons of britian" need to be thinking of the future, and for getting the infrastructure in place, so we can compete with the rest of the world.
- That we need to encourage people to invest in things, and build for Britain, Europe and the people of this world, so we can enjoy life again.

The Devils Views...

Education

- We need those people who do, to teach a bit as well. as the problem with academics is, they have no clue and have a habit of scaring people off doing anything, and argue stuff which isn't true, as they failed to make a go of it, and as such we need to be cautious of that. those who made it work, need to be able to teach, and pass their secrets on, so that everyone else can improve for once.
- We should try and avoid superimpose our own fears over the next generation of people, they will accomplish more, if they are allowed to think, and be themselves and all they can be, all we can do, is pass on our mistakes, our knowledge and hope they learn quicker than we did. its their life, and they will be the ones, who either run with it/fk it up in the long run.
- that anyone showing promise, should be allowed to skip ahead, and accomplish more.
- That anyone who says, no it can't be done/its impossible be removed from teaching permanently on the grounds, they are a moron, and nothing is impossible and we're only limited by what we belief, which is why belief should be left out of it, so we focus on solutions and problems instead.... as nothings impossible in this life, if we simply believe, or rather do instead. in fact once you know how to do something its so easy, you wonder why we wasted so many years doing the other, or why we miss the obvious in life...
- Simplify - don't complicate... blow something up, it will be fun.
- that you the individual can and will get a working proto-type of something better than business can, as its only large scale duplication/manufacturing which is the bitch.... (unless someone corrects me/teaches me otherwise there?)
- stop worrying, worst case scenario, you fk up and kill yourself, I'm sure you'll get another chance to play the game again, nor that you may want to play this game again, but well life is meah...
- I am a witch, deal with it" no one should be scared off researching the occult, teaching psychic development, or speaking about their ideas, and any moron quoting mental health, or propagating hate (ala the bible) is going to be on my bad side for life. as the only reason to outlaw witchcraft is to protect evil from attack. as by learning to open up, and face your fears you come to terms with yourself, and you learn to see the flaw, and that is the only reason they preach those books, in order to maintain control, and stop people learning. and as such I have a low opinion of any spiritual drug dealer, who feeds on fear, reinforces prejudice, and fuels the fire of fear, as we the people have a right to defend yourself, and as such should be taught to question authority in all its forms, to think for themselves, and to try inter alia as I trust no one here.
- We do not want the banks concluding with the lords, but if the lords want to go into the banks, then that's acceptable as the money has to go to the people, who are starting out in business, as well as those who are trying to improve things.
- we should not be letting anything go to waste the environment, needs work

The Devils Views...

the head of state, monarchy and everything else

The problem with electing people in with 50% of the vote, is we may get spineless, wimps who play to the crowd like Obamma, and we have the European council and its gets into a mess, with no clear leadership, we also have an issue with the army, and who heads the judiciary... and the voice of reason, which means we perhaps still need the monarch, as a safeguard. i.e. someone who doesn't normally play, but can kick off, when things go wrong, and someone who is intelligent enough not to sign her (and the peoples freedom away) I see no reason, why people can't petition the voice of reason directly inter alia.... and this post is perhaps connected to money, and land.

you don't want to be sucking up to voters, as your trying to safeguard against that, and well if the people are being stupid, "they are being stupid" as I reflect on how to make it work. though it perhaps doesn't have to pass, by birthright, and nomination might work better, where the preceding monarch gets to choose who gets the veto next. anyway someone needs to pull that lot together and force them to work as one, if they are not doing their bit, are having no clue... and yeah I give up here, as it's a mess. perhaps the judiciary are the ones who elect the voice, for bringing the people together, as kingdoms are made, and broken on the ability of a person to move humpty dumpty again... the problem is you can never be sure who your going to get, so perhaps its best left to genes, and education, or something like that... as I really have no clue what to do with the monarch at all. though they really do have to have the intelligence, to go that's crap I'm not signing that, and I don't care what anyone thinks, as its wrong, and its goes to consent. parliament is not the law, and has no right to rule against content, as the many do not rule the one, and freedom wins.

No amount of numbers should ever justify tyranny and fear, as no people has the right to suppress any other, and your flags are st!

want one of ours instead?

www.thesextree.co.uk

Fighting for Freedom on the International Scene